Champion Content to Remain on Defensive in Tame Contest.
NEW YORK, March 12.—While the shaded Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion, at Madison square Garden last night in one of the most tenacious fights ever seen in New York. It was a terrible exhibition for two champions, and at the end was almost impossible to pick a winner, so slight was Ritchie's margin. It was really "no contest." Ritchie, all the forcing, and if it came right on to a fine point he deserved a side. Welsh blocked most of the blows, but landed the cleanest blows the bout, few as they were. Welsh gave one of the poorest exhibitions for a champion in the annals of the game. He fought on the defensive throughout, absolutely refusing to stand up and exchange with a Californian. Welsh was as wild as a March hare from start to finish. He deserved what credit there was to be had. He at least tried during the fight to climb into the ring. His hope was to drop Welsh for the count. The only real round of the fight was the seventh. Ritchie started out as in other rounds by swinging both hands continually for the body, and the Welsh blocked most of these, but he had one shot through his guard the bell. Welsh made his best showing in the eighth round. He boxed cleverly and the first time during the fight he hit his straight left and right hooks with precision. If they had been preliminary fights both would have been thrown out of the ring.

GANDIL AND MORGAN EXPECTED TO SHOW MUCH BETTER FORM

Both Players Evidence Improvement Even Now Over Their Work of Last Fall. Pick and Neff Good Utility Men.

BY J. ED GRILLO.
CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., March 12.—That both Gandil and Morgan will play in improved form this year is indicated by their showing in the exhibition games here. While both players still need a lot of conditioning and are far from being at their best, their work is so much better even now than it was last fall that they are hard to recognize. Morgan is not only playing his position splendidly and using judgment in making plays, but he is full of dash. In the two games yesterday he made five clean hits, one of which was a double, and several of which were productive of runs.
Gandil, too, is hitting hard and timely, and he is playing his position as of yore. In fact, the big first baseman looks better than he has for some time, and gives promise of being in perfect health this summer. Gandil's throwing arm, which always gives him trouble in the field, is straightened out now, but it will gradually crook right now, but it does every spring when the weather gets warm.
With Gandil and Morgan back in good form, the Nationals will appear more formidable than they did at any time last year.
In Pick and Neff Manager Griffith has a couple of most promising utility men. Just where Pick belongs is a question. He is not a strong defender in either the outfield or infield, but Griffith believes that he can be taught to play the outfield. He is not only one of the fastest runners, but he is also one of the fastest hitters, and uses good judgment on the bases. In fact, Pick is at his best right now, for the reason that he is in good health, while when he joined the Nationals last fall he was far from feeling well. Pick did not last spring, so is apt to start the season in left and remain there as long as he holds his own with the bat. Who will be his partner in the field remains to be seen. Roudon, no doubt, is a natural hard hitter, but the Frenchman is not the aggressive player that Griffith would like to have him and that he would like to have him in the field. Neff, who, of course, needs experience, can play any one of the infield positions and also in the outfield. He is a natural, and he is a fast runner. He will be used to fill the places of the regulars when ever occasion demands, for there is no doubt that he has the making of a high-class infielder and all-around ball player.

It would not be at all surprising if Griffith stood pat on his outfield, which he has kept intact for three seasons. Shanks, Milan and Mueller will very likely start the season in these positions. Shanks is hitting well this spring, and he did last spring, so is apt to start the season in left and remain there as long as he holds his own with the bat. Who will be his partner in the field remains to be seen. Roudon, no doubt, is a natural hard hitter, but the Frenchman is not the aggressive player that Griffith would like to have him and that he would like to have him in the field. Neff, who, of course, needs experience, can play any one of the infield positions and also in the outfield. He is a natural, and he is a fast runner. He will be used to fill the places of the regulars when ever occasion demands, for there is no doubt that he has the making of a high-class infielder and all-around ball player.

The two games yesterday were played under none too favorable conditions. While the sun was on the job all morning, it was decidedly chilly on the field, and the players, suffering from the cold. In the afternoon it was even colder, and after six innings had been played, Griffith called a halt.
As a result of the weather, Eddie Foster and Clyde Milan did not turn their uniforms in the afternoon. Both are suffering with severe colds, and may not be able to resume training for a day or so. The pitchers in the morning were in good shape, and the game was a close one. In the training season, Milan was hitting and trailing well, while Foster's work around third base and his timely hitting have been the subject of much comment among the other players.
George McBride is picked to have a much better year with the bat this season than he had last, and if he is showing to date here can be taken as a criterion there is no doubt of it. George hit the ball hard yesterday on both occasions. He is practicing the art of hitting into right field and is showing progress what is an outstanding. With McBride working his batting average up to over .300 he would do more than his share to keep the Nationals contenders in the race for a better and better of thrown balls McBride has no superior.

A young Thorndike is picked to make a great left-handed pitcher. He is so natural about everything in the game that it is only a question of time when he will be developed into a real star. Though he is but sixteen years old and has never had professional experience, he has a smooth delivery, a lot of stuff, and a keen eye. He keeps the ball hard yesterday, and he is particularly impressed with Thorndike's ability, and he is of the opinion that when this young man has had experience he will be a most consistent performer.

Two games will be played again today, weather permitting. This system of playing games is not only beneficial to the athletes, but it gives Manager Griffith a chance to get a line on his new players, for there are lots of action in these games, which are played fast, and a lot of stuff used which would be necessary during the championship season. As yet none of the pitchers has been allowed to use anything but speed. This because of the chilly winds which might effect their arms. But as soon as the weather sets warm the pitchers will be allowed to use everything they have in their repertoire, and then the batters will get a chance to train their eyes.

MACK DECLARES BAKER IS NOT INDISPENSABLE

Manager Says There Is No Such Thing in Any Business as Not Replacing a Man.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 12.—"There is no such thing as not replacing a man in business, and it applies to baseball, too," is the opening broadside of Mack, first of the big league managers, in commenting on the fact that Baker is celebrating his twenty-second anniversary of his birth today.
The afternoon game was just as interesting as the morning struggle, and was scored a 2-to-1 victory. Rogers and Shaw pitched the first four innings, Shaw leading much the better of the argument, until the fourth, when an error by Avosta and doubles by Olsen and Miller netted a brace of runs.
